CONVENTION OF MINERS
TO BE HELD IN ZANES-
VILLE MONDAY APRIL 9

Rumored That Hall, President, and Miller, Secretary Are Re-Elected

ELECTION RESULTS
GIVEN AT MEETINGLocal Miners Triumphant
Over Outcome of Cleveland Conference

The Miners' convention of this sub-district No. 6, will be held at Zanesville Tuesday, 10:30 am, April 9—one week from tomorrow.

The men will vote April 10 on the new scale.

The convention has been postponed from day to day, till after the conference of the miners and operators at Cleveland. At the convention the official announcement will be made on the recent referendum election of sub-district officers. While it is impossible to get any information it is rumored that President Lee Hall, of Bryesville (former Coshocton boy) and Secy. Ed Miller, of this city, have been triumphantly re-elected.

President Hall Monday issued the information that the district (state) board would meet at Columbus tomorrow afternoon to decide about the number of men to be permitted to continue work at the mines during the suspension, for repairs, improvements, etc. An official circular will be issued from national headquarters in a day or two giving notification concerning the referendum vote on the compromise scale.

Secy. Miller stated that personally he was highly pleased at the outcome of the Cleveland conference and that he thought the men of this sub-district would support it in the ratio of about five to one. He says he thinks the suspension will not be longer than four weeks and that by May 1 the miners will be back at work again. He also is hopeful of early peace in the anthracite fields.

"The men are all pleased with the outcome" remarked an operator to an Age man today. "Friday and Saturday were the heaviest days we have had this spring at our mine. Men worked right up to the last minute just as if they were coming back to work Monday. The result is that when the suspension order is over, they will go back in and have profitable work the very first day—coal ready for loading. A few radicals quit work Friday; but the average miner kept right at it as though such a thing as a suspension were farthest from his mind."

The referendum vote by the miners on the Cleveland scale will take place April 10. This statement is made by Senator Green who returned yesterday from Cleveland and who is National Statistician of the U. M. W. Mr. Green says the vote will be completed by April 15 and he would not be surprised to see the men back at work by April 20. About 1000 men in Coshocton county are affected by the suspension.

The new contract to be voted on is for two years and gives an advance of .0526 cents per ton on all outside work and .04 cents per ton on machine mining. This means that some of the men will receive $2.85 instead of $2.70. Mr. Green is confident the men will accept the contract which is a nice increase over the old one.

CANNEL COAL
MAGNATE HERE

Mr. Mason, of Pittsburg, head of the syndicate who has been skirting with S. C. Priest and others for the development of the Warsaw cannal coal fields, arrived in the city Sunday. He is confident of the early fruition of his plans, as a new company has been organized and he says will soon be at work getting out coal. He says it will be the biggest forward impetus, Warsaw and the rest of the county has ever experienced. More than 1500 acres are involved.

Oliver Taylor, who is the head of a syndicate holding some remarkable rich coal lands in Guernsey-co, was in the city Sunday visiting his father Wm. Taylor.

COSHOCTON'S CITY STREET CAR

LINE ASSURED BEYOND A DOUBT

"Coshocton's city street car line is assured beyond any peradventure" said a man in position to know, to an Age man today. "It is completely settled and beyond any chance of slipping. We are not yet ready to make any statements, but Coshocton will have an electric car line, nicely covering the entire city, within a very few months."

WHO LAID THAT OTHER EGG IS THE QUESTION

The services of a notary public were necessary to convince a crowd of people in New Castle that George Hoagland was telling the truth when he said that he had six hens that laid seven eggs every day.

Hoagland was telling the story a few days ago but everyone thought he was joking. To "show" them he penned the hens up in a barn, made new nests and the next day, sure enough the six hens had laid 7 eggs. That was Saturday. Sunday he told of his test of the six hens to a crowd around the village store. When no one believed it a notary was called in and Hoagland made affidavit to his statement.

CRISIS OF THE FLOOD REACHED
SUNDAY MORNINGTraffic Over Roads Is Resumed Again Monday Morning.Flaming Gas On Water Is Cause Of Much
Wonder

Since Saturday afternoon the rivers, both the Walhonding and Tuscarawas, have been slowly falling and today have receded from both the Roscoe and Canal Lewisville roads so that traffic can now pass over them.

At 3 o'clock Saturday the streams began to go down and early this morning this had gone down about two feet since that time. All danger of a serious flood now seems to be passed as far as Coshocton and vicinity is concerned, for the water is now falling steadily and will not rise again unless rainy weather again sets in.

Although many parts of the county were covered with water during the overflow of the rivers, yet no serious damage was done to property according to reports.

A strange spectacle was witnessed by many people Sunday night at the forks where they had gone to see the high waters. A gas main crosses between the two rivers near Balch's mill. During the high waters the main burst a little so as to cause a small leak. The leak was under the water and bubbles could be seen arising from the water over the roadway. Someone evidently walked out into the water near the leak and lighted the gas so that it burned on top of the water. The sight was a strange one and it appeared as if the water were on fire.

25,000 MINERS
RETURN TO WORK

London, April 1.—Twenty-five thousand striking coal miners have returned to work in the collieries of Scotland and Wales and it is expected by Easter Tuesday all of the 1,000,000 men and boys who were made idle by the strike, would be back at work in the pits of the United Kingdom.

Returns received up to this afternoon show that the referendum vote of the miners is 2 to 1 in favor of acceptance of the minimum wage bill.

Mrs. John Mackey Breaks
Bone in Fall Over An Obstacle

Mrs. John Mackey, a well known woman living near West Lafayette, sustained a fracture of the femur bone Sunday morning when she tripped and fell heavily to the ground.

Mrs. Mackey was walking around the house on an errand when she tripped on some object lying on the ground. She fell forward in such a position that the femur bone was fractured. She was taken into her home where she was later attended by Dr. Yarnell of West Lafayette.

The condition of Mrs. Mackey, who is 65 years old, was considered serious at first but Monday she is resting comfortably and it is thought that the fall will have no evil results.

COST BILL
HELD UP BY JOHN MAPEL

Chief of Police Doesn't Want Laird to Get Fees

CLAIMS HE IS ENTITLED TO IT

Chief of Police Row Gets Before County Commissioners

John Mapel, Coshocton's police chief is not going to stand by calmly and see fees, which he claims rightfully belong to him, slip through his very fingers, according to an objection made to the county commissioners by Mapel's attorney B. F. Voorhees Monday against the payment of a bill presented by Patrolman Laird for criminal proceedings and costs of transporting a prisoner to the Canton workhouse. The bill won't be paid until the commissioners have investigated.

A few weeks ago Harvey Potter was arrested, convicted and sentenced to serve a term in the Canton workhouse. Mayor Cussingham, who is on the outs with the chief of the police department, instructed Patrolman Laird to take Potter to Canton which Laird did.

Monday morning the commissioners met to allow regular bills. Among the number to be considered was one presented by Patrolman Laird for $10.00 and another for $4.45. The first bill was the "cost bill" from police court and the second was Laird's personal bill covering expenses for taking Potter to the workhouse. The latter bill was itemized as follows:

"Railroad fare for patrolman to Canton, $2.20.
"Railroad fare for prisoner, $1.10.
"Meals, $1.80.
"Street care fare, .15.
"Total—$4.45."

When the bill was taken up by the commissioners Monday afternoon Atty. B. F. Voorhees filed his objection. He said that the mayor had no right to send a patrolman to the workhouse with a prisoner but that it was the duty of the police chief or his deputy to do that, according to the statutes and he pointed out two sections of the general code to substantiate his statement.

Mr. Voorhees was given the assurance of the commissioners that no action would be taken on the two bills until a thorough investigation has been made. The prosecutor may appeal to the attorney general for aid.

Atty. Voorhees said in his argument to the commissioners that if the bills were allowed he would see that the attention of the examiner from the state bureau of accounting would be called to the fact.

The grand jury started on its grind Monday morning at 10 o'clock and expect to be finished by Wednesday evening or Thursday morning.

Just 72 witnesses have been summoned to appear before the grand jury about 20 of whom are to testify in the Roscoe fire bug case. Among the witnesses called is the widow of the late Fred Landerman whose name, before his death by suicide, was connected with the fires. The others are all prominent residents of the village.

One case the details of which are too horrible to publish is being investigated today and it is thought will result in an indictment.

The "high school skunk" case will be investigated into Monday or early Tuesday. Five high school students and Supt. Bryant have been summoned to testify in that case.

There are several other minor cases being investigated.

Five members of the grand jury as originally drawn were excused for different reasons by Judge Nicholas Monday morning. Those excused were J. B. Renfrew, S. E. Vail, T. S. Humrickhouse, Wm. a Divorce From Dave
Morgan

Charging extreme cruelty, habitual drunkenness, and gross neglect of duty Mrs. Rebecca Morgan Monday through her attorney C. R. Bell started suit against David Morgan in probate court for divorce, alimony and custody of the eight minor children.

Mrs. Morgan declares that her husband for the last seven or eight years has kicked and struck her with his fists. She says that when she was sick after the birth of her last child her husband came home drunk and beat her.

The woman claims that her children have been forced to work in factories and mines to help support the family since the husband will not contribute toward their support and will not provide a proper place for them to live.

Mrs. Morgan wants divorce, alimony, custody of the children, and a restraining order prohibiting Morgan from interfering with her or her children.

GABRIEL LORENZ

Gabriel Lorenz, aged 75 years, one of Coshocton county's best known citizens, died Sunday morning at 4 o'clock at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Briston Stingle, at Oak Grove. For the past few weeks Mr. Lorenz had been a sufferer from dropsy, and it was from the effects of this disease and advanced age that death resulted.

Mr. Lorenz was born in Oderpheln, Bavaria, Germany and at the age of 21 years came to this country and settled in Tuscarawas county with a brother who was already living there. He lived in that locality for a few years then went to Cincinnati, where he followed his trade of a baker. In 1865 he returned to Coshocton county, where he spent the remainder of his life and followed his trade. Gabriel Lorenz was very well known and highly respected by all who knew him, and he came to be known as one of the county's most prominent citizens. His death has caused wide spread sorrow throughout the entire county.

Mr. Lorenz's wife preceded him to the grave two years ago. He is survived by four sons, three daughters and two brothers. The sons are John and Crawford; the daughters are Mrs. Charles, of New Philadelphia, and Harvey, of this city; the daughters are Mrs. Dan Leavengood, of near West Lafayette; Mrs. Schumaker, of McGuffee's Grove, and Mrs. Briston Stingle, of Oak Grove. John Lorenz, of this city, and Rudolph, of Oderpheln, Germany, are brothers. Funeral services will be conducted Tuesday morning at the German Evangelical church in this city. The body will be brought here on the noon Wheeling and the funeral services will follow immediately afterwards. Interment will be made in South Lawn cemetery.

MRS. L. K. ANDERSON

Mrs. Leroy K. Anderson, a former well known resident of Coshocton, died Sunday morning at 6 o'clock at her home in Chicago. For the past number of years she had been in failing health and had traveled to different parts of the country in an effort to benefit it, but to no avail. The news of her sudden death comes as a great shock to her many friends and relatives in this city, where she was born and where she spent the greater part of her life.

Her husband, Leroy K. Anderson, was formerly engaged in the drug business in this city, for a time with his father and brother, C. E. Anderson, and afterwards he was in business for himself here. Fifteen years ago the family moved to Columbus where they lived for two years. From there they went to Chicago, where they have since made their residence.

Mrs. Anderson, before her marriage to Leroy K. Anderson was Marie Louise Price, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Price, very prominent people of Coshocton. When she lived in Coshocton Mrs. Anderson was one of the city's most prominent young women and had hosts of friends who were attracted to her by her noble womanly traits of character. She was a member of the Coshocton Presbyterian church and her entire life was truly christian.

Besides the husband, Mrs. Anderson is survived by two sons, Harry T. and Sidney H., of Chicago. Mrs. Mary E. Dent and Mrs. J. C. Campbell, of Newark, are sisters. Capt. Samuel Price, of Newark, is a brother.

The body will arrive here Tuesday morning from Chicago, and the funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home of T. S. Humrickhouse on South Fourth-st., Rev. Powder Mill Explodes and Shakes Passaic, N. J.

Easton, N. J., April 1.—The Wayne Black Powder mills near here were destroyed by a series of explosions early today.

A telegraph message from the scene at 8:45 am. said that two men had been killed and several injured. Surrounding towns within a radius of 20 miles were shaken by the explosions, causing a belief that an earthquake had been the cause. The dead, Charles S. Stokes, superintendent of the finishing plant; Charles R. Beck, a laborer.

The plant comprised twelve mills. Of these, three were destroyed in today's explosion. In each of these mills, it is customary to keep on three or four men at work. The men had just begun their duties today when the finishing mill blew up and two other mills exploded immediately afterward.

The first explosion was the most severe of the three. It broke some plate glass windows in a plumbing shop in Passaic, fifteen miles away, and led the residents of that city to believe one of their buildings had collapsed. So great was the apprehension in Passaic that the fire department was called out.

Had Marriage License But No Bride

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.—An elderly negro walked into the forum presided over by Judge H. B. Abernethy the other day and after looking around in a stealthy manner, waddled up to the judge's desk and said: "Cuse me, sah, is yo' de fedge of dis yere cote?"

SHE TUK UP WID A TRIFLIN YALLER NIGGER AN' JES SHOOK ME—YASSIR

"I reckon so, uncle. What can I do for you?" replied Judge Ab.

"Does yo' marry folks?"

"Sure; do you desire to enter the state of connubial bliss and felicity?"

"Jedge, what yo' says is so, but ah 'lar I ain't done hit. What ah wants is ter get married."

"Have you secured the license?"

"Yessah, jedge, yere hit are," said the old man, as he produced the pink envelope that contained the document by authority of which bachelors are changed into benedicts.

"This seems all right. Where's the feminine part of this contract?"

"Sey which, jedge?"

"Where is the woman you are to marry?"

"Dat's what Ah wants yo' ter do, git de ooman. Yo' see, jedge, dat Ah want de ooman who has her name writ on dat yere license promises ter marry me, an' Ah goes ter git de paper."

"While Ah was gone she done tuk up wid a triflin' yaller nigger an' jes shook me—yassir."

"I can't force the woman to marry you, but you can sue her for breach of promise."

"Bresches o' de promise, fedge! I don't reckon she wear 'em. Ah'n't dis yere paper what I paid six bits for no 'count?"

"Well, you might sue the woman for the $1.75."

"Dat's hit, jedge, dat's hit. What Ah wants is ma money back. Ter tell de true, jedge, ah would rather have de money dan de woman, anyhow."

Finally Judge Ab told the old darkey to wait a few days to see if Ah'n't would not change her mind and carry out her promise, if not to go to the clerk of the court who issued the license and he would refund the money.

The old man looked a little crestfallen at not getting either the woman or the money, and left the court evidently disappointed at the refusal of the court to compel the marriage.

"WOMAN IN THE CASE" IN NEWARK

A Coshocton man who was in Newark Sunday says he saw on the streets there the woman who it was accused was the one with whom Jesse Haller ran away. This clearly contradicts that sensational portion of the story. It is said in Newark that the woman who lives there, has not been out of town, and has in no way been connected with the mysterious disappearance of the Coshocton butcher.

Sunday Concert Pleases Crowd

Coshocton is music-hungry, and in the Sunday afternoon band concerts, one of which was given by the Imperial band at the Pastime theatre yesterday afternoon, a really long felt want is filled.

The theatre was packed to capacity and the audience was an enthusiastic and appreciative one. The band, under direction of Manuel Yingling, played with rare spirit. Quite the most attractive selection of the afternoon was that from the ever tuneful "Madame Sherry." The reeds were particularly effective in this, especially in the "flutter-flutter" movement. While the band played all the numbers well, yet that which showed best balance was the Indian Summer Intermezzo. One of the most pleasing features of the program was the cornet solo by Mr. Tompkins, who played in faultless style and with exquisite purity of tone "Faure's The Palms"—quite appropriate for a Palm Sunday program. Another solo that gave delight to the big audience was that on orchestra bells by Mr. Wilcox. The two numbers by the men's chorus, DeKoven's "Recession" and "Soldiers Chorus" from Faust, were well rendered. All in all, it was a delightful program and the public is beginning to show its appreciation of the Sunday afternoon opportunities. It is to be hoped that open air concerts will be arranged for this summer.

THE RAT AND HIS BOARD-BILL

What constitutes his bill-of-fare? Anything and everything. He is practically omnivorous and eternally hungry. In the West Indies rats have destroyed hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of coffee, orange and banana plantations; in Japan, millions of dollars worth of rice. In Germany, rat losses amount to fifty million dollars a year; in the United States, one hundred and sixty million dollars a year.

Rats eat seeds and grains of all kinds, flour, meal and food products made from them; fruits and garden vegetables; mushrooms, the bark of growing trees; eggs, chicks, ducklings, squabs, young rabbits, bulbs, roots, stems, leaves and even the flowers of plants; milk, butter and cheese, fresh and salt meat, etc., etc. This great variety of diet explains the ease with which rats adapt themselves to any environment.

Experiments show that the average quantity of grain consumed by a full-grown rat is fully two ounces daily. A half-grown rat (one month old) eats just about as much. Fed on grain, a rat eats from 45 to 50 lbs. a year. Worse yet, they destroy, pollute and render unfit for human consumption much more than they actually eat.

Rats are very fond of matches, especially those with ends dipped in paraffine, and by gnawing them cause serious fires. Fires in cotton mills and warehouses have been traced to the spontaneous ignition of greasy, oily rags or waste carried under floors by mice and rats.

But the commonest way in which rats cause fires is by gnawing away the insulating covering from electric wires passing under floors or inside of partitions, using the insulating material for nests. Insurance companies a few years ago estimated the fire loss in the United States due to defective insulation of wires at fifteen million dollars yearly—and since rats and mice are the chief agents in impairing insulation after the wires are in place, the bulk of this sum can be

OXFORD WINNER BY EIGHT LENGTHS

Putney, Eng., April 1.—For the fourth consecutive year Oxford won the classic annual eight oared boat race from Cambridge today. Oxford was the favorite in the betting and the winning of the dark blue today carried out predictions which had been made for weeks. The showing of the dark blues on Saturday also made it evident that the Cambridge team would have to show miraculous improvement to carry off the honors.

Oxford now has 28 victories to her credit to Cambridge's 30, the race in 1877 having been declared a draw.

Neither conditions were almost as bad as on Saturday when both boats were swamped and the contest was called a race by umpire Pitman.

Outclassed by their heavier opponents, the Cambridge crew was eight lengths behind when Oxford drove across the line. During part of the race there was a sudden hailstorm, accompanied by fierce gusts of wind but the crews managed to escape the disasters such as marked their race 48 hours before.

SEES SPECTRE HUNTS HUSBAND

Chicago, April 1.—Warned by the spectre of her murdered sister, Desle Kent Webster who was slain by Dr. Harry Elgin Webster in the woods near Dixon, Ill., Mrs. Sanford Harmon began a search for her husband. The man today is lying in the county hospital dangerously injured as a result of an attack by holdup men.

The spectre of her sister appeared to Mrs. Harmon after she had waited until late at night for her husband to return.

"Sanford, Sanford, Sanford," said the voice of the dead girl, according to her sister. For the rest of the night Mrs. Harmon could not sleep. In the morning she began her search. Finally she found her husband in the hospital. He had been robbed and beaten by four highwaymen. His skull was fractured.

MISSISSIPPI LEVEES THREATEN TO BREAK

Memphis, Tenn., April 1.—With the Mississippi river here a foot higher than it has even been known to reach before, and with rains falling generally throughout the river valley, it is feared today that the most serious floods ever known here may result. Steamers loaded with refugees from the inundated country are arriving and report that the river has stretched over miles of territory with only occasional islands of higher land appearing above the surface.

The levee opposite Memphis is weakening and it is feared it will break and the towns of Hubert and Marion, Ark., with a combined population of 4,000 people will be flooded. Factory districts in north Memphis are covered with water.

HARD COAL MEN OUT ON STRIKE

Wilkesbarre, Pa., April 1.—A strike of 170,000 anthracite miners is in full swing. The last of the men to go out left the mines at midnight. The hard coal industry is at a standstill today but the first actual day of the strike will not come until tomorrow, April 1 being a miners holiday in celebration of the inauguration of the eight-hour work day.

Reports received here from throughout the field stated that the suspension was complete. Those gave great satisfaction to the union leaders who declared that the men will be able to present a firm front no matter how long the struggle lasts.

Union organizers have been at work since the first intimation of trouble and have increased the membership of the union by thousands, they claim.

Officials of the anthracite branch of the union, who have been attending the joint conference in Cleveland, Ohio, arrived home today, bringing optimistic reports. They declare that the prospects are bright for an amicable adjustment within a month.

Mass meetings were held throughout the anthracite belt today.

Even if the strike lasts only a month, it is estimated that the wage loss to miners alone will aggregate $10,000,000 while loss indirectly inflicted by the slump would reach another $10,000,000.

EXPECT MINES TO RESUME SOON

Pittsburg, Pa., April 1.—Possibilities are that by Thursday mines in Pittsburg district No. 5 will be in full operation again. The convention of the district reconvenes in Labor temple this, this city, Wednesday morning when the delegates will decide whether or not work shall be resumed pending the referendum vote by miners on the acceptance of the wage agreement by operators and the union's policy committee.

President Francis Feehan of the local district who arrived home from Cleveland yesterday and was very optimistic over the situation.

"It is practically assured," he said, "that miners in all the districts will vote to accept the agreement endorsed by the policy committee on Saturday night in Cleveland. The completion of the referendum vote by the miners will take at least two weeks. In the meantime each district shall have the right to decide whether the men shall work pending the vote."

PNEUMONIA CLAIMS A YOUNG CHILD

Dwight, the 10-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Corder, died at the home of his parents in Coshocton Saturday after having been ill but a few days with pneumonia. Besides the father and mother the child is survived by one brother and one sister.

The funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at the Plains church and burial was made in the cemetery there.

And then she noted a startling lack of completeness in the bride's hand.

"Why—my dear!—where's your wedding ring?"

With what he considered great presence of mind, Mallory explained: "It—it slipped off—I—I picked it up. I have it here." And he took the little gold band from his waistcoat and tried to jam it on Marjorie's right thumb.

"Not on the thumb!" Mrs. Temple cried. "Don't you know?"

"You see, it's my first marriage."

"You poor boy—this finger!" And Mrs. Temple, raising Marjorie's limp hand, selected the proper digit, and held it forward, while Mallory pressed the fatal circlet home.

And then Mrs. Temple, having completed their installation as man and wife, utterly confounded their confusion by her final effort at comfort: "Well, my dears, I'll go back to my seat, and leave you alone with your dear husband."

"My dear what?" Marjorie mumbled faintly, and began to sniffle again. Whereupon Mrs. Temple resigned her to Mallory, and consigned her to fate with a consoling platitude: "Cheer up, my dear, you'll be all right in the morning."

Marjorie and Mallory's eyes met in one wild flash, and then both stared into the window, and did not notice that the shades were down.

THE WEDDING RING IS FOUND.

CHAPTER XI.

A Chance Encounter.

While Mrs. Temple was confiding to her husband that the agitated couple in the next seat had just come from a wedding-factory, and had got on while he was lost in tobacco land, the people in the seat on the other side of them were engaged in a little drama of their own.

Ira Lathrop, known to all who knew him as a woman-hating snapping-turtle, was so busily engaged trying to drag the farthest invading rice grains out of the back of his neck, that he was late in realizing his whereabouts. When he raised his head, he found that he had crowded into a seat with an uncomfortable looking woman, who crowded against the window with old-maidenly timidity.

He felt some apology to be necessary, and he snarled: "Disgusting things, these weddings!" After he heard this, it did not sound entirely felicitous, so he grudgingly ventured: "Excuse me—you married?"

She denied the soft impeachment so heartily that he softened a little: "You're a sensible woman. I guess you and I are the only sensible people on this train."

"It seems—so," she giggled. It was the first time her spinstership had been taken as material for a compliment. "Something in the girlish giggle and the strangely young smile that swept twenty years from her face and belied the silver lines in her hair, seemed to catch the old bachelor's attention. He stared at her so fiercely that she looked about for a way to escape. Then a scuriously anxious, almost a hungry, look softened his leonine fangs into a boyish eagerness, and his growl became a sort of gruff purr:

"Say, you look something like an old sweetheart—er—friend—of mine. Were you ever in Brattleboro, Vt.?"

A flush warmed her cheek, and a sense of home warmed her prim speech, as she confessed: "I came from there originally."

"So did I," said Ira Lathrop, leaning closer, and beaming like a big sun: "I don't suppose you remember Ira Lathrop?"

The old maid stared at the bachelor as if she were trying to see the boy she had known, through the mask that time had modeled on his face. And then she was a girl again, and her voice chimed as she cried:

"Why, Ira!—Mr. Lathrop!—is it you?"

She gave him her hand—both her hands, and he smothered them in one big paw and laid the other on her extra warmth, as he nodded his savage head and roared as gentle as a sucking dove:

"Well, well!—Annie—Annie—Miss Gattie! What do you think of that?"

They gossiped across the chasm of years about people and things, and knew nothing of the excitement so close to them, saw nothing of Chicago slipping back into the distance, with its many lights shooting across the windows like hurried torches.

Suddenly a twinge of ancient jealousy shot through the man's heart, recurring to old emotions.

"So you're not married, Annie. Whatever became of that fellow who used to bang round you all the time?"

"Charlie Selby?" She blushed at the name, and thrilled at the luxury of meeting jealousy. "Oh, he entered the church. He's a minister out in Ogden, Utah."

"I always knew he'd never amount to much," was Lathrop's epitaph on his old rival. Then he started with a new twinge: "You bound for Ogden, too?"

"Oh, no," she smiled, enraptured at the new sensation of making a man anxious, and understanding all in a flash the motives that make coquettes. Then she told him her destination. "I'm on my way to China."

"China?" he exclaimed. "So'm I!" She stared at him with a new thought, and gushed: "Oh, Ira—are you a missionary, too?"

"Missionary? Hell, no!" he roared. "Excuse me—I'm an importer—Annie, I—"

But the sonorous swear reverberated in their ears like a smitten bell, and he blushed for it, but could not recall it.

CHAPTER XII.

The Needle in the Haystack.

The almost-married couple sat long in mutual terror and a common paralysis of ingenuity. Marjorie, for lack of anything better to do, was absent-mindedly twisting Snoozleum's ears, while he, that pocket abridgment of a dog, in a well meaning effort to divert her from her evident grief, made a great pretense of ferocity, growling and threatening to bite her fingers off. The new ring attracted his special jealousy. He was growing discouraged at the ill-success of his impersonation of a wolf, and selected at being so crassly ignored, when he suddenly became, in his turn, a center of interest.

Marjorie was awakened from her trance of inanition by the porter's voice. His plantation voice was ordinarily as thick and sweet as his own New Orleans sorghum, but now it had a bitterness that curdled the blood:

"Sense me, but how did you-all get that dead dog in this coach car?"

"Snoozleums is always with me," said Marjorie briskly, as if that settled it, and turned for confirmation to the dog himself, "aren't you, Snoozleums?"

"Well," the porter drawled, trying to be gracious with his great power, "the rules don't 'low no live stock in the sleeping cars, 'ceptin' humans."

Marjorie rewarded his condescension with a blunt: "Snoozleums is more human than you are."

"I psume he is," the porter admitted, "but he can't make up berths. Anyway, the rules says dogs goes with the baggage."

Marjorie swept rules aside with a defiant: "I don't care. I won't be separated from my Snoozleums."

She looked to Mallory for support, but he was too sorely troubled with greater anxieties to be capable of any action.

The porter tried persuasion: "You betta lemme take him, the conducta is wuss'n what I am. He thoved a couple of dogs out the window trip befo' last."

"The brute!"

"Oh, yessum, he is a regular brute. He just loves to hear 'm spish when they light."

Noting the shiver that shook the girl, the porter offered a bit of consolation: "Better lemme have the pore little thing up in the baggage cah. He'll be in charge of a lovely baggage-smasher."

"Are you sure he's a nice man?"

"Oh, yassum, he's death on trunks, but he's a natural born angel to dogs."

"Well, if I must, I must," she sobbed. "Poor little Snoozleums! Can he come back and see me tomorrow?" Marjorie's tears were spilling on the puzzled dog, who nestled close, with a foreboding of disaster.

"I reckon p'haps you'd better visit him."

him.

"Poor dear little Snoozleums—good night, my little darling. Poor little child—it's the first night he's slept all by his little lonesome, and—"

The porter was growing desperate. He clasped his hands together impatiently and urged: "I think I hear that conducta comin'."

The ruse succeeded. Marjorie fairly forced the dog on him. "Quick—hide him—hurry!" she gasped, and sank on the seat completely crushed. "I'll be so lonesome without Snoozleums."

Mallory felt called upon to remind her of his presence. "I—I'm here, Marjorie." She looked at him just once—at him, the source of all her troubles—buried her head in her arms, and resumed her grief. Mallory stared at her helplessly, then rose and bent over to whisper:

"I'm going to look through the train."

"Oh, don't leave me," she pleaded, clinging to him with a dependence that restored his respect.

"I must find a clergyman," he whispered. "I'll be back the minute I find one, and I'll bring him with me."

The porter thought he wanted the dog back, and quickened his pace till he reached the corridor, where Mallory overtook him and asked, in an effort at casual indifference, if he had seen anything of a clergyman on board.

"Ain't seen nothin' that even looks like one," said the porter. Then he hastened ahead to the baggage car with the squirming Snoozleums, while Mallory followed slowly, going from seat to seat and car to car, subjecting all the males to an inspection that rendered some of them indignant, others of them uneasy.

If dear old Doctor Temple could only have known what Mallory was hunting, he would have snatched off the mask, and thrown aside the secular scruple to be at all costs. But poor Mallory, unable to recognize a clergyman so dyed-in-the-wool as Doctor Temple, sitting in the very next seat—how could he be expected to pick out another in the long and crowded train?

All clergymen look alike when they are in convention assembled, but sprinkled through a crowd they are not so easily distinguished.

In the sleeping car bound for Portland, Mallory picked one man as a clergyman. He had a lean, ascetic face, solemn eyes, and he was talking to his seat-mate in an oratorical manner. Mallory bent down and tapped the man's shoulder.

The effect was surprising. The man jumped as if he were stabbed, and turned a pale, frightened face on Mallory, who murmured:

"Excuse me, do you happen to be a clergyman?"

A look of relief stole over the man's features, followed closely by a scowl of wounded vanity:

"No, damn you, I don't happen to be a person. I have chosen to be—well, if you had watched the bill-boards in Chicago during our run, you would not need to ask who I am!"

Mallory mumbled an apology and hurried on, just overhearing his victim's sigh:

"Such is fame!"

He saw two or three other clerical persons in that car, but feared to touch their shoulders. One man in the last seat held him specially, and he hid in the turn of the corridor. In the hope of eavesdropping some clue. This man was bent and scholarly of appearance, and wore heavy spectacles and a heavy beard, which Mallory took for a guaranty that he was not another actor. And he was reading what appeared to be printer's proofs. Mallory felt certain that they were a volume of sermons. He lingered timorously in the environs for some time before the man spoke at all to the dreary-looking woman at his side. Then the stranger spoke. And this is what he said and read:

"I fancy this will make the biggest sit up and take notice, mother: If there ever was a person named Moses, it is certain, from the writings anerlithed to him, that he disbelieved the Egyptian theory of a life after death, and combated it as a heathenish superstition. The Judaic idea of a future existence was undoubtedly acquired from the Assyrians, during the captivity."

He doubtless read much more, but Mallory fled to the next car. There he found a man in a frock coat talking solemnly to another of equal solemnity. The next next they were unoccupied, and Mallory dropped into it, perking his ears backward for news.

"Was you ever in Moline?" one voice asked.

"Was I?" the other muttered. "Wasn't I run out of there by one of my audiences. I was givin' hypnotic demonstrations, and I had a run-in with one of my 'horses,' and he done me dirt. Right in the midst of one of his cataleptic trances, he got down from the chairs where I had stretched him out and hollered: 'He's a bum faker, gents, and owes me two weeks' pay.' Thank Gawd, there was a back door open'n' on a dark alley leadin' to the switch yard. I caught a caboose just as a freight train was pullin' out."

Mallory could hardly get strength to rise and continue his search. On his way forward he met the conductor, crossing a vestibule between cars. A happy thought occurred to Mallory. He said:

"Excuse me, but have you any preachers on board?"

"None so far."

"Are you sure?"

"Positive."

"How can you tell?"

"Well, if a grown man offers me a half-acre ticket, I guess that's a pretty good sign, ain't it?"

Mallory guessed that it was, and turned back, hopeless and helpless.

CHAPTER XIII.

During Mallory's absence, Marjorie had met with a little adventure of her own. Ira Lathrop flushed his encounter with Anne Gattie shortly after Mallory set out stalking clergymen. In the mingled confusion of finding his one romantic flame still glowing on a vestal altar, and of shocking her with an escape of profanity, he backed away from her presence, and sank into his own berth.

He realized that he was not alone. Somebody was alongside. He turned to find the great tear-stained eyes of Marjorie staring at him. He rose with a recrudescence of his woman-hating wrath, and dashing up the aisle, found the porter just returning from the baggage car. He seized the black factotum and growled:

"Say, porter, there's a woman in my berth."

The porter chuckled, incredulous: "Woman in yo' berth!"

"Yes—get her out."

"Yassah," the porter nodded, and advanced on Marjorie with a gentle, "Sense me, missus—yo' berth is numba one."

"I don't care," snapped Marjorie. "I won't take it."

"But this un belongs to that gentleman."

FREE IF IT FAILS
Your Money Back if You are not Satisfied with the Medicine We Recommend

We are so positive that our remedy will permanently relieve constipation, no matter how chronic it may be, that we offer to furnish the medicine at our expense should it fail to produce satisfactory results.

It is worse than useless to attempt to cure constipation with cathartic drugs. Laxatives cause a reaction, irritate and weaken the bowels and tend to make constipation more chronic. Besides, their use becomes a habit that is dangerous.

Constipation is caused by a weakness of the nerves and muscles of the large intestine or descending colon. To expect permanent relief you must therefore tone up and strengthen these organs and restore them to healthier activity.

We want you to try Rexall Orderlies on our recommendation. They are exceedingly pleasant to take, being eaten like candy, and are ideal for children, delicate persons, and old folks, as well as for the robust. They act directly on the nerves and muscles of the bowels. They apparently have a neutral action on other associated organs or glands. They do not purge, cause excessive looseness, nor create any inconvenience whatever. They will positively relieve chronic or habitual constipation, if not of surgical variety, and the myriads of associate or dependent chronic ailments. If taken with regularity for a reasonable length of time, 12 tablets, 50 cents, old in Rochester only at our store—The Rexall Store, Siegrist & Williams.

CLAIMS WIFE WORKED HOAX

Leander Jennings Granted a Divorce Monday—Wife Played Good Game.

Leander Jennings was granted a divorce from Ida Jennings by Judge Ashman of the probate court Monday morning. He is to pay the costs of the case. Mrs. Jennings gets no alimony. Three years' wilful absence was the ground on which the divorce was granted. In the testimony at the hearing of the case last week it developed that Mrs. Jennings came to Coshocton one day four years ago to see a doctor. She never returned home. Several months later Jennings got a letter from his wife saying that she wanted to meet him the next day in Coshocton. Jennings left his farm a few miles out of town and came here to meet the woman. While he was here the woman went to the home and took away what property she cared for. It is claimed. Judge Ashman didn't like that kind of action. Mrs. Jennings did not explain why she had left her husband so unceremoniously.

THE FIRST GRAY HAIR SIGN OF AGE
Easy Way to Preserve Natural Color of the Hair and Make It Grow.

A hairless remedy, made from common garden sage, quickly restores gray hair to natural color. The care of the hair, to prevent it from losing its color and lustre, is just as important as the care for teeth to keep them from discoloring. Why spend money for cosmetics and creams to improve the complexion and yet neglect your hair, whose gray hair is even more conspicuous a suggestive of age than wrinkles or poor complexion? Of the two, it is easier to preserve the natural color and beauty of the hair than it is to have a good complexion.

All that is necessary is the occasional use of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, a preparation of common garden Sage and Sulphur, crystallized with other valuable remedies, for Gray, faded hair, dandruff, itching scalp, a falling hair. After a few applications of this simple, hairless remedy, your hair will gradually be restored to its natural color, in a short time the fall will be removed, and your hair will no longer come out in clumps, and your hair will grow thicker and more abundant.

Don't neglect your hair, for it is further than anything else to make your good looks. You can have this remedy at any drug store for fifty cents a bottle, and your hair will give you money back. If you are not satisfied after using it, chase a bottle to try. You will regret it when you realize how much it will make in your life.

KEEP TRIBAL CUSTOMS

SARCEE INDIANS DISREGARD
MARCH OF TIME.

History, Intended for Posterity, Still Is Recorded in Crude Fashion on the Hides of Steers—Old Men
Tell of Adventures.

Within twelve miles of Calgary, a city of 50,000 people, and with telephone communication with that city, the Sarcee Indians pursue their lives and observe exactly as their forefathers did the ancient habits and customs of their tribe, says the Toronto Globe.

Two years ago there was a great festival at which seven of the oldest chiefs related the stories of their exploits, which the painter of the tribe preserved for posterity on two immense steer hides. These hides are now carefully preserved at the office of the agent on the Sarcee reserve.

The Indian had relics for his history on campfire stories and a well-tanned steer hide covered with queer characters, painted crudely with a sort of ink made of the juices of plants.

These records are not haphazard, but they are not altogether regular. When several chiefs and medicine men of the tribe are growing old an assembly is arranged where the famous Indian interpreter and painter meets the aged men. One by one the old men stand forth before the people and recount the stories of their lives.

They tell thrilling tales of the battles in which they have fought, of the scalps taken, and the horses they have stolen. These three achievements are regarded as the three most honorable and valorous exploits of the great men. Compared with these the white man's election to parliament, his appointment to high office, and his great commercial achievements are as nothing.

Sometimes their meetings last several days. The old men are enthusiastic in their descriptions of bygone days; they recite rapidly and gesticulate much. The members of the tribe, sitting about them, listen eagerly, storing the details to be told over and over again to their sons, until they are tribal traditions of the long past. As they talk the painter sits upon the ground with his steer hide spread before him and paints with his rude dyes pictures to illustrate the incidents.

A circle represents a barricade or encampment; awkwardly drawn pictures of animals stand for the horses he has stolen; a galloping horse, with a man on his back, suggests the story of a wild flight across the prairie before pursuing enemies; a flag may mean a bloody battle won; a tadpole-like mark, a scalped Indian. The figures are very crude, the drawings no better than those a four-year-old child makes on its slate. But some ingenuity is exercised in the grouping, and each sketch is, in a way, a key to the thrilling tales which in time become history.

Dog Under Arrest

A dog thief—not a dog stealer, but a dog which had been trained to steal—has been arrested by the French police. He was caught "en flagrant delict," we read, when he was in the act of stealing a pair of lady's shoes from an establishment in Noisy-le-Sec. His procedure was so cunning that it left no doubt among the police that the dog's was no "untutored mind."

Nothing could be drawn from the animal at the police office, so it was decided to shut him up without food. After some hours confinement the dog was released and a police cyclist was in readiness to follow the dog home. But the "best laid schemes of mice and men gang aft agley."

The dog when liberated instead of rushing home deliberately walked to the other side of the road, and there sat down on a doorstep and awaited events, every now and again throwing suspicious glances at the police in waiting. Finding that there was no chance of the dog going home he was again taken into the police office and sent to the fourriere, where he met an untimely end.

American Airs

A woman recently back from foreign parts has a grievance against the way in which military bands there play American airs, states the New York Press. To begin with, says this woman, two-thirds of the bands and orchestras of Europe think "Dixie" is the national air, and this mistake is not difficult to comprehend, as applause generally greets this tune. Next in popularity comes "Columbia, Gem of the Ocean," and, strange to say, then comes "Old Dan Tucker."

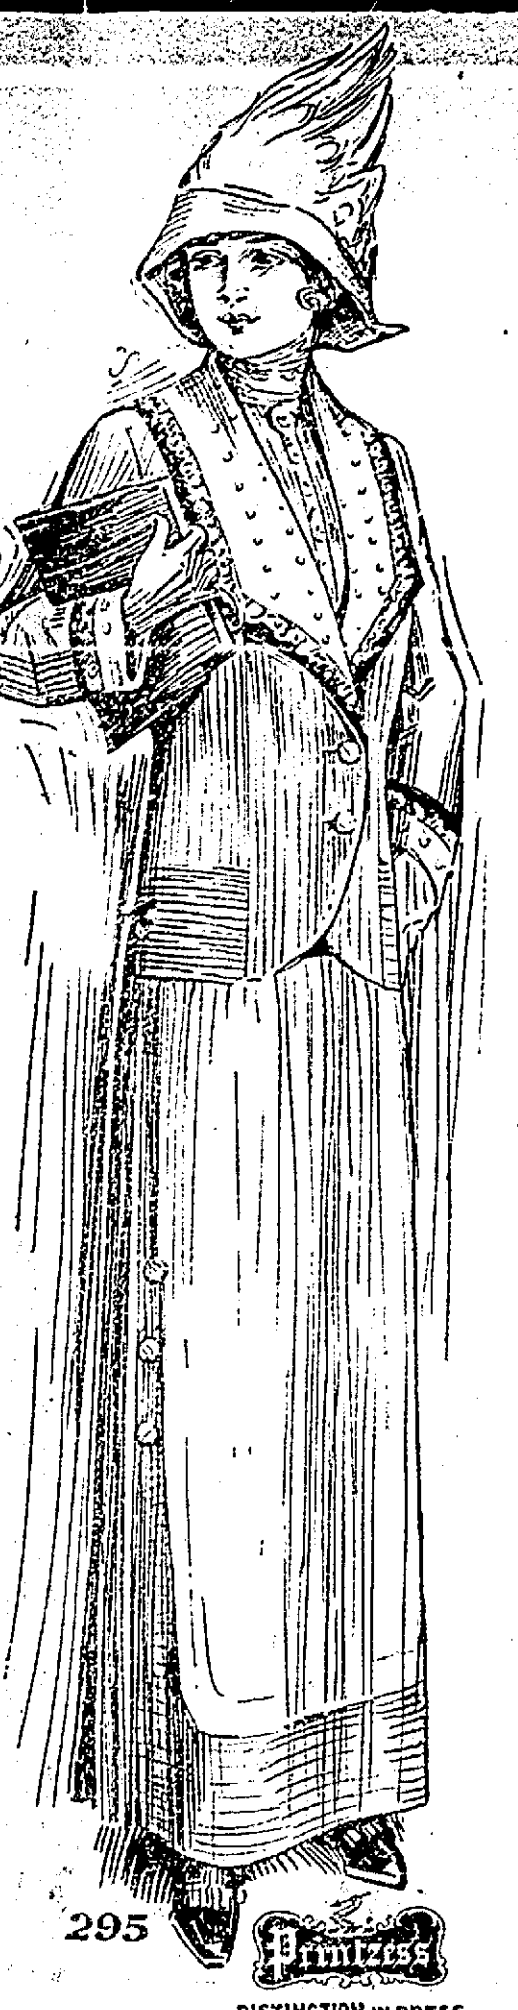

No amount of expostulation avails to change this notion. "The Star Spangled Banner" is reserved for solemn occasions, and it must be confessed Americans are not wildly enthusiastic over it. Not one in a thousand remembers three lines of the verses, not even the school children who shout them every day. "Maryland" is popular, but the tune is that of the old Presbyterian hymn, "Beulah Land," and may be heard wherever Scotch and English folks gather.

Heard in a Newspaper Office

"Honesty is the best policy." "I wish I could believe it, but I have in mind the woman who sent in an advertisement reading like this: 'Wanted—A husband with money; object alimony.' Did she get an answer to her advertisement? Not one."

DAUGHTER OF COSHOCOTON MAN MAKING GOOD

Miss Maude Murray a Hit in Big New York
Production

The Cleveland Leader Monday morning has the following to say of Miss Maude Murray, who is the daughter of Stanley Wilcox, well known day clerk at the Standen hotel:

Word comes from New York of the pronounced success of Marion Murray, of this city, as Mrs. Benton in "The Man From Cooks," a Klaw & Erlanger musical show, which they expect will duplicate the success of their "Pink Lady." Miss Murray is praised for her fine singing, for the way she acts, as well as for her decorative qualities.

She was the former wife of Owen T. Jenks, once prominent in the lumber business here, and both Mr. and Mrs. Jenks were in the forefront of society. Mr. Jenks failed in business and his wife, with her sister, went upon the stage. Both were musical and for a time they appeared in vaudeville as the Murray sisters. Then they went into musical comedy and finally Mrs. Jenks (Marion Murray) was engaged by Klaw & Erlanger to create the part of a dashing society woman in their new production. In addition to having a sweet and well-trained voice, Miss Murray was known as one of the best pianists in Cleveland in her society days.

Game Tonight

The bowling match for this evening at the Corder & Wisenbarg alleys will be between two teams of the Pope-Gosser pottery. The match will begin at 7:30.

BUCKEYES GET NEW PITCHER

Manager Larcombe Promises Local Fans Some Real Baseball

Coshocton's baseball season will open within a very short time. The Buckeyes have issued a call for a meeting Friday night for the purpose of electing a playing captain and training work will be started immediately afterwards.

The Buckeyes this year will have a number of new players among them being a man named Snyder formerly with the Massillon club, a pitcher of no mean ability. He pitched for Massillon last season and lost only two games during the entire year. He has the stuff that counts and is expected to do some great work here this season.

The meeting Friday night will be held at the city hall. All players who expect to be given a try-out should attend the meeting. Manager Larcombe intends giving Coshocton a regular baseball team this season.

RACE ASSOCIATION TO MEET TONIGHT

The monthly meeting of the Coshocton Race Assn. will be held tonight at the office of Glenn O. Boyd, instead of the city hall. All members are requested to attend the meeting as some business of importance is to be transacted.
